

---

Do you know the health complications and risks of female genital mutilation/cutting?

---

How do you support women and girls you treat who have experienced female genital mutilation/cutting?

---

How do you respond to the health issues that may arise from female genital mutilation/cutting?

National Education Toolkit for Female
Genital Mutilation/Cutting Awareness

---

How can we improve health outcomes in Australia for women and girls who have experienced female genital mutilation/cutting?

National Education Toolkit for Female
Genital Mutilation/Cutting Awareness

NETFA stands for National Education Toolkit for Female Genital Mutilation/Cutting Awareness.

Female genital mutilation/cutting (FGM/C) is a women's health issue.

Information and resources are available to assist health professionals to appropriately treat and support women and girls living in Australia who have experienced FGM/C.

NETFA can help you to:

Understand the variety of long and short-term health complications and risks that affect women and girls who have experienced FGM/C.

Support and inform the women and girls you treat who have experienced FGM/C while respecting their cultural dignity.

Respond appropriately to health complications that may arise for women and girls who have experienced FGM/C.

Engage in the issue so we can collectively improve health outcomes in Australia for women and girls who have experienced FGM/C.

The NETFA website has a range of toolkits, guides, publications, videos, standards, best practice approaches, research and other resources specifically for health professionals.

www.netfa.com.au